Course Syllabus

4 Credits – Summer 2008

Fudan University

★ Textbook: BOYA Chinese (Semi-Intermediate Speed-up, Volume I ) (Author: Li Xiaoqi, Peking University Press)

This textbook consists of two volumes. Each volume has eight units and each unit includes two lessons. We will use volume I in the period of the study. For each unit, there are warm-up activities at the beginning and relative exercises by the end. This textbook is suitable for the students with a basic mastery of Chinese vocabulary (about 1000 words) and grammar. The students can reach HSK level 5 or 6 when finishing this book.

★ Teaching Methods: Each class will be divided into three sections: students' presentation, teacher's lecture and class discussion. The students will have chance to learn Chinese songs, watch Chinese movies and perform short plays.

1. For each class, one student would be assigned to read newspapers in the first 20 minutes.

(one student reading aloud and summarizing the theme while others are taking part in the discussion and expressing their own views.)

2. The students begin to study according to the textbook in the next 90 minutes.

3. In the last 40 minutes, general introductions of Shanghai and China would be given to the students according to the text, including Chinese traditions and customs.

★ Requirements:

1. Prepare for the class according to the teaching schedule.

2. Grasp the meaning and usage of new words and finish the exercises.

3. Hand in a short essay every half-month (within 500 words).

4. Participate in the newspaper-reading activity according to the arrangement of the teacher.
